Description:

- In current days for identifying a person emotion takes a lot of time because of varying expressions and features present in human faces.
- There was a lot of study going on to detect the several types of expressions from human's in different environments such as Work, Play, Relax, Break and so on.
- Home room correspondence includes instructor's conduct and understudy's reactions.
- There was a lot of research work done on the investigation of below average students and average students by the instructor to identify those students and take some special care.
- In the primitive day's almost human emotions are identified manually based on the current expression and feelings of the human's in day to day environment.
- But there was no accurate method designed in primitive days for identifying the emotions or expressions automatically.
